FRIDAY MORNING, JULY 18, 1862.

President Lincoln.

We find in the New York Times of the 2d June a most excellent article, reviewing the official career of President Lincoln—his motives—his policy, and their probable results.

This article goes on to say that three gentlemen were recently engaged in conversation in front of one of the principal hotels in New York city, while the President's carriage was passing. The President was the only occupant. One of the gentlemen, a foreigner of distinction and cultivation, in a manner wholly involuntary, raised his hat and remained uncovered until the carriage passed by. "You forget that you are in Republican America and not in Russia," said one, referring to the marked manner in which the person addressed had saluted the Executive. "Not at all, Sir! Not at all!" he replied. "There is the only living ruler whom I sincerely reverence. I could not avoid showing the feeling of which my heart is full, if I would. He is a patriot, a statesman, a great-hearted honest man. You Americans reverence nothing in the present. Your WASHINGTON had his traducers, and few of his cotemporaries esteemed him a great man. Mr. Crittenden, one of your statesmen, says that Mr. Lincoln can place himself nearest to Washington in the hearts of the people of his country. I say to you that not alone your posterity, but the posterity of all the peoples, which love honesty and revere patriotism, will declare that the difficult role which President Lincoln was called in these times to perform, required the exercise of as noble functions as the 'Father of his Country' ever possessed. It is anything but a credit to you that you do not better appreciate and honor the man that God has sent in these perilous times to rule the people of this Republic."

These were nearly the words of the intelligent foreigners, but they did not show the earnest and impressive manner in which they were spoken. The party received the rebuke in silence; one, at least, of them thought it was merited.

Fourteen months ago Mr. Lincoln came to Washington. His arrival in disguise, in the gray of the morning twilight, almost alone, created a very unfavorable impression, even in the minds of his friends, who did not know all the occurrences which preceded that eventful journey. The "Peace Congress" was then holding its session. The arrival of the President elect was not generally known until after the body convened. There were seated around a table in the hall where its meetings were held, Seddon, John Tyler and Brockenbrough, of Virginia; Reid and Barringer, of North Carolina; Waldo Johnson, of Missouri; Moorhead and James B. Clay of Kentucky, with several members of the New Jersey and Maryland Delegations, when a servant presented a card to one of them, on which was written: "Lincoln is in this hotel." It was rapidly circulated around the table, and produced no little excitement. "Lincoln here!" "When? how did he get here?" "Was there any outbreak in Baltimore?" "Did he come through that city?" Questions such as these circulated rapidly, and with the surprised and disappointed expressions of the countenances of many of the party, indicated in the most decisive manner that some of these gentlemen did not expect Mr. Lincoln's passage through Baltimore to be unattended by public demonstrations! If the history of that Convention is ever written, it will display the performances of a most rampant and traitorous band of secessionists. When it was suggested in the evening that the Convention should call in a body on the President elect, the secessionists, not daring to oppose the motion openly, made a futile effort to detract from the dignity of the proceeding by proposing that Mr. Lincoln be invited to call on the Convention!! a proposition which was indignantly voted down on the motion of a member from New York. The Convention then called on the President at his parlors. Every member was received with a cordial grasp of the hand, and in the frank, open and generous manner which is so natural to Mr. Lincoln, that he cannot put it off. To the Southern members he was especially attentive; every word he uttered indicated a welcome which was hearty if it was not polished. The whole reception was without that formal, frigid manner in which an important functionary of the Government had extended to the same members a few days before, his clammy and fishy hand. But Southern chivalry turned up its nose at this disregard of formal etiquette. Its representatives looked glum, and when at length the President elect committed the gross sin of making a joke upon Rives, of Virginia, they could restrain themselves no longer. Even while enjoying his hospitality, these Southern gentlemen called him "boor," "cross-roads lawyer," "rail-splitter," and other epithets, intended to express their contempt for a man—worthy and great as he might be—who had risen from obscurity by his own unaided efforts to the highest position on earth. Mr. Lincoln came from the cottage—his hands browned with toil, and a mind deeply imbued with knowledge, which were to be used in guiding the ship of State. For such a man these Southern Chivs—sprouts of first families—had no sympathy or respect.

We shall conclude the remainder of this article to-morrow.

SALARIES REDUCED.—Section 9, of Act of Congress, "to reduce the expenses of the survey and sale of the public lands in the United States, approved May, 30, 1862, provides that from and after the first of the present month, the salary of the Surveyor General of California shall not exceed three thousand dollars per annum, instead of three thousand five hundred; and the salaries of the Surveyors General of Oregon and Washington Territory shall not exceed two thousand five hundred dollars each per annum, instead of three thousand as heretofore.

FROM CARIBOO.—The following is an extract from a letter received from Olympia, W. T., written under date of July 11th, 1862. The writer seems to be perfectly satisfied with his trip to Cariboo:

"Here I am just back from old Cariboo. Have had a devilish hard trip of it, and am about used up. It is no use to give you a statement of the mines, as your daily of a few days back states the whole matter in a nutshell. There is gold there, but the mines are spotted. Only a few make their piles at mining. Provisions are very high and scarce; and the climate very unhealthy. Hundreds of men are coming back broke. I have seen the elephant and am satisfied."

The Advertiser collects items of Eastern news, which the editor considers unfavorable to the Union, and says the Union men will "howl over" his doings. Not in the least. We have long since heard the editor of that sheet denounce Union victories as treason to Jeff. Davis, accompanied with prayers to God that He would paralyze the Union arms. We don't think that the Advertiser need fear on this occasion any thing more than a hiss of contempt from Union men. It would be unmanly to take a more serious notice of this evidence of secesh rejoicing in the "family newspaper."

SAD ACCIDENT.—A suspension bridge at Nevada, Cal., spaning Deer Creek, fell with a tremendous crash, on the morning of July 10th, killing one man instantly, injuring another so badly that he lived but a few moments, and a third man very seriously but not dangerously. Two ox teams were on the bridge at the time, and twelve of the oxen were killed.

NO DOUBT.—The Advertiser publishes an extract from a British paper, announcing the fact that an unusual amount of flax is being cultivated throughout England, Scotland and Ireland. We have no doubt there will be a great demand for this article before long—to hang traitors. Ain't you frightened a little, neighbor?

FOREIGN TRADE.—We notice in the reported proceedings of Congress, that Senator McDougall, of California, introduced a resolution in the Senate, July 10th, requesting the President to have prepared a full report on the foreign and domestic trade of California, Oregon and Washington Territory, to be submitted next session. Resolution laid over.

ONE CIPHER TOO MUCH.—An error occurred in our dispatches of Wednesday evening, in stating the number of Federal prisoners said to be at Richmond. The figures should have been 4,500, instead of 45,000. The error was in the copy furnished, and not ours.

SAN FRANCISCO ITEMS.—The steamship Republic was seized on the 10th, by the United States Marshal, at suit of Henry Kosterman, for $8,100 damages.

Rollins, the man who walks on water in canvas shoes, capsized in the bay July 10th, and was near drowned, but was rescued by a boat from the United States steamer Lancaster.

Advices from Washington, D. C., state that Victor Smith, United States Collector of Washington Territory, who was reported as absconded, was in Washington consulting with government on proposed alterations in the Pacific Department.

VOORHEES OF INDIANA.—"I say to you, my constituents, that as your representative, I will never vote one dollar, one man, or one gun to the administration of Abraham Lincoln to make war upon the South."

Voorhees is one of the immortal fourteen who issued the famous Vallandigham address to the Democrats of the nation.

A late Richmond Examiner says: "The rebels could have cut off McClellan's retreat, but it would be far better to prevent his receiving further supplies, and starve him into capitulation."

It is now believed that the announcement of the death of Stonewall Jackson was untrue, and that the publication of it was intended as a ruse.

Details of Eastern News.

The Navy Department is officially informed that on the [illegible]th of June, gunboats Tahoma and Somerset crossed the bar of St. Mark's river, Florida, and drove out a company of rebels. The artillery, four or five field-pieces, was afterwards landed, and this force burned the forts and barracks. The Somerset captured the schooner Curlew off Cedar Keys. The same vessel also surprised a steamer loading with cotton at Dead Man's Bay. Before she could be reached the crew burned her.

The steamer Montgomery captured the British schooner Will-o'-the-Wisp, off the Rio Grande, loaded with ammunition.

Santa Fe dates to the 22d of June have been received. It is reported that the Texans had sent a Commissioner to Chihuahua to obtain permission from the Mexican authorities to pass through to Texas. The permission was not granted. This refusal will doubtless retain Texans in Arizona longer than they would otherwise have stayed.

The Washington Star says, a distinguished army officer, whose opportunities for learning the extent of the enemy's damage in the seven days fight were better than those of any other person, estimates their loss in killed and wounded at 75,000. They refused to receive flags of truce from McClellan carrying inquiries relating to Union officers believed to be wounded and taken prisoners.

The correspondence of the New York Herald says: Rebel prisoners say that long before the evacuation of Corinth troops from Beauregard began to arrive at Richmond, and continued to arrive steadily until the evacuation took place, by which time fifty thousand had arrived. Subsequent to that event, twenty-five thousand more came. All these were the flower of Beauregard's army. General Lee had the chief command in the late battles.

The New York Herald's correspondence, dated James river, July 5th, says: "Our army is now massed on the left bank of the James river, along a space of five miles, where we are comparatively safe. The rebels are massed between the Chickahominy and the James rivers—their front toward and pressing upon our rear, their right resting on Richmond, where the main body of their army remains. Their left extends down toward the Junction, two miles from our position."

Colonel Sheridan, with a little over seven hundred cavalry, was attacked by parts of eight rebel regiments, numbering 4,500 men, on July 1st, near Booneville, Miss. The rebels were defeated and driven back, after seven hours fighting. The Federal loss was forty-one killed, wounded and missing. The rebels left sixty-five dead on the field.

The Richmond Dispatch says: The British steamer Modern Greece, while going into Wilmington, N. C., on the 27th of June, ran ashore. She had a thousand tons of powder on board, which was wet to prevent explosion by the shells of the blockading fleet. The Federal vessels were unable to reach her in consequence of the proximity of Ft. Fisher."

The New York World gives a statement from a trustworthy Union man, recently from Atlanta, Ga., that the spirit of the South is utterly broken, and had the battles before Richmond resulted in Confederate defeats, the the rebellion would have been crushed. He also says that comparatively little cotton has been destroyed, as the planters do what they can to save it. He adds that the wheat crop is an utter failure. If corn also fails, famine will be the fate of the South.

The Richmond papers of the 3d July report that Magruder's and Johnson's divisions were frightfully cut up, and the loss of officers was very great. Among the latter were many of the best and bravest in the Southern army. It is confessed that the valor of our men defeated their plan to capture the entire force of McClellan; that the retreat was managed with consummate judgment, and our positions defended with stubbornness, causing them very heavy losses. The same papers suggest the parceling out of prisoners among the plantations to work in place of the negroes who have been stolen or who have run away.

Arkansas is represented to be in a dreadful state of ferment. Persons from Napoleon who have fled from the conscription, say not a store was open in that town, and not more than half the houses were occupied. Six Union men had been hung in Little Rock within the last two weeks, one put in jail simply for speaking to a Federal officer. Reports from Gen. Curtis' army are so conflicting that it is impossible to form a correct idea as to his condition and whereabouts.

Four hundred State troops defeated two hundred guerrillas in Moscow county, Mo., recently. The latter lost twenty killed and wounded.

Dr. Oliver, a Richmond refugee, represents so great a scarcity of medicines and provisions in that city of late, that those of the Federal army who fell into their hands are left uncared for on the field.

NEW YORK, July 8.—The correspondent of the Herald infers from the statements of rebel officers taken prisoners that the defences of Richmond are not very strong. They rely for the defence of the city chiefly upon Fort Darling. They believe it to be utterly impossible for the Union army to enter Richmond by land, on account of the number of the rebel troops, or by water, on account of the obstructions in the James river. Besides Fort Darling, they say batteries have been erected above that point, and mounted with heavy guns. There are also said to be submerged iron batteries, containing a large quantity of powder, connected by wire with the land batteries, so arranged as to be exploded at any moment desired. Other obstructions have been sunk and driven into the bed of the river, in such a way that they cannot be removed without a vast expenditure of time and labor. They think it never can be done under the fire of the guns, and no vessel can pass while they remain.

The Provost Marshal at Memphis has ordered that houses from which anti-Union emblems are suspended shall be taken possession of for the Government.

The World's dispatch says: An important manifesto, in the shape of a proclamation from the President, defining the future policy of the administration on the great question of the hour is not improbable at an early day. President Lincoln has been waited on by several Senators and members of the House. He will also be visited by a large delegation to-day, to urge him to issue a proclamation of the same tenor as the bill reported to the Senate, requiring the Generals commanding the various departments to accept the services of all persons coming within our lines.

THE MORNING OREGONIAN has a larger SUBSCRIPTION LIST than any other Daily published in this City.

THE DAILY OREGONIAN may be had at the Franklin Book Store, and at Charles Barrett's, Front street.

Boon vs. McClane. Continued because of absence of Stratton, J.

Robbins vs. Green. Dismissed at cost of Robbins.

Argument in Parrish vs. Willamette Woolen Manufacturing Company, concluded.

SURGICAL OPERATION.—Dr. Loryea, with the assistance of Dr. Glisan, operated on Mr. Griffin, of Linn county, Wednesday last, and successfully removed a tumor from his arm weighing one and a-half ounce. The patient is rapidly recovering.

ELECTION IN WASHINGTON TERRITORY.—The returns of the election in Washington Territory held on the 14th inst., reach us but slowly. By private letter received last night from Steilacoom, we are informed that Pierce county went strong for the Union ticket. We doubt not the whole Territory has gone the same way.

SCHOOL EXHIBITION.—The exhibition of the Portland Academical school, last evening, in the M. E. Church, proved highly entertaining and creditable. We cannot, however, particularize the many excellent exhibitions of scholastic acquirements presented upon the occasion, but suffice it to say, that each and all acquitted themselves with much credit and to the entire honor of the school. The house was crowded to overflowing.

IMPROVING.—Building and refitting still goes briskly on. The addition to the Metropolis Hotel is rapidly progressing, and when completed will present quite an imposing appearance. Other important improvements are under way in many parts of the city.

IN RECORDER'S COURT.—A fellow by the name of Scotty, was arraigned on a charge of drunken and disorderly conduct, whereupon he was fined in the sum of $10, and committed to jail for five days.

Mr. J. S. McCormick has given notice by Circular, that he will issue 5,000 copies of his famous Oregon and Washington Almanac for the year 1863, on or about the first of September next.

FUN.—Considerable amusement was offered disinterested parties, yesterday, in witnessing the ferrying of a large band of wild cattle across the river.

TRADE.—Our merchants are having a busy time for this season of the year. Large quantities of goods are daily disposed of, and new lots continually arriving.

MORE BEEF.—Three hundred and fifty head of beef cattle passed through this city yesterday for the mines.

The ferry-boat now lands at foot of Stark street, and crosses the river landing on the opposite side at the bridge.

Mossman & Co.'s express office has been removed to the Post Office building.

A STRATAGEM.—Captain McFarland of the 102d Pennsylvania Regiment, having been taken prisoner near Fair Oaks by a party of six rebels, who were carrying a wounded officer to the rear, very politely offered to pilot them through the bushes, and carefully brought them round among our own pickets. The summons "Who comes there?" was answered by the Captain, "A friend with seven prisoners."

THE BATTLE BEFORE MEMPHIS.—Jeff. Thompson witnessed the whole battle, seated on his horse, in front of the Gayoso House. When the rebel fleet seemed pretty near demolished, he is reported to have said: "Well, the thing is up, and I had better leave." He and a number of other rebels left the city by the Memphis and Charleston road about an hour after the fight, and had it been known, the train might have been shelled by our gunboats from the river.

The King of Dahomey, in a frantic fit of emulation of our Southern brethren, recently, attacked a city of a neighboring empire, beheaded 1,000 of the inhabitants, sold 4,000 into slavery and burnt the town.

Gen. Harney is quietly living on his estate near St. Louis. He has been forty four years in the army.

The balls from a gun make curious journeys in the human form divine when sent and received in battle. A soldier arrived at New York Monday who had been wounded in the head, coming out at the neck and falling down his back, making only a flesh wound.

Two regiments of Indians have been organized in Kansas and mustered into the service of the United States.

The offerings of the Catholics of the Diocese of New York to the Pope, in August, 1861 amounted to $53,000. The names of all who contributed have been enrolled on a gigantic sheet, which, when unrolled, extends nearly a mile in length.

They are arming the niggers in Georgia. At least, the Atlanta Confederacy recommends that course, and calls it "fighting the devil with fire."

There is a great demand just now for splinters from the late Merrimac. An industrious man with little capital might do a fair business making them.

Union meetings are getting to be quite common in Tennessee, and are largely attended. The people are rapidly returning to their old allegiance.

Since the war broke out our blockading fleet has captured no less than 167 vessels, viz: steamers, 9 ships, 10 barques, 13 brigs, 110 schooners, and 11 sloops.

Chancellor Vankoughnet signalized the commencement of his career on the chancery bench of Canada West by causing a decree to be entered that counsel practicing in his Court shall be prohibited from wearing moustaches.

Why is Henry Ward Beecher worse than Brigham Young? Because he has married more women than he can support, and would like to marry more.

A meeting of merchants and bankers was held in St. Louis, recently, in favor of procuring a branch mint in that city, in view of the increasing yield of gold at Pike's Peak and the Rocky mountains, which finds an outlet at that point.

The Secretary of the Interior replies to a resolution of the Senate, that 46 vessels have been held on charge of being engaged in the slave trade for the ten years ending May 1st, 1862. The number of vessels engaged in the traffic has undoubtedly been ten times greater.

The Dutch have decided to abolish slavery in all their American possessions. The emancipation is to be gradual and compensated. The act goes into effect in July, 1863.

The bereavements of the war—so far as the single city of New Orleans is concerned—have a dreadful exemplification in the appalling fact, admitted by the Delta, that there are now no fewer than 2,400 orphan children in the several asylums of that city.

INCIDENTS OF THE WAR.—A letter dated June 7th, from a Union soldier, speaking of the battle of Fair Oaks, says: "Amid all these horrors we have seen some sights that brought a smile to the faces of our men. A little to the front of our camp we found, lying close beside each other, a Union soldier and a rebel, both dead. But our man must have died first, for the rebel had his hand in his neighbor's pocket, and he was shot through the head before he had time to complete his robbery, or even to withdraw his hand.

The writer also relates the case of a dead rebel who had been making remarkably free with the clothing captured in Gen. Casey's camp. He wore the insignia of an orderly sergeant, and "had on three pairs of our new blue pants, with the right leg pushed through the fourth, when the fatal bullet arrested him. The fellow's avarice killed him."

Acting Capt. John Wilkeson of the New York One Hundredth, lost his life from his over anxious desire to bring his company in good order off the field. Every other company in the regiment had been broken. He made his men face about, fire and retreat—halt, load, face again and fire, and retreat again. His military place in this manœuver was in front of his men when they retreated, and behind them when they faced about to fire. Too brave and too proud to require a courage from common soldiers, of which he did not set the example as an officer, he marched on their flank, and behind them as they retreated, and ahead of them as they faced the foe. In this conspicuous place of danger, a bullet was shot through his breast."

AN INTERVIEW WITH BEAUREGARD.—From a statement of experiences in the South, furnished to the New Albany Ledger by an Indiana sergeant named Gardner, who was captured at the battle of Shiloh, and escaped after an imprisonment at Corinth and Tuscaloosa, we extract the following account of an interview with Beauregard:

"After his capture Gardner was immediately moved off to Corinth, where he remained till nine o'clock the next evening and was taken to General Beauregard, who asked him what he came there for. He answered, 'To uphold the Union.' General Beauregard said 'God d—n the Union, there is none. You have come down here to fight gentlemen. You are a set of d—n Yankee robbers, murderers, and thieves. You come here to rob and murder the women and children. I have a notion to hang you.' Gardner answered 'They have tried to shoot me' and pointed to his wounded arm, and Beauregard answered 'It is a pity it was not your d—d head.' An artillery officer here interposed, begging the General not to abuse him, as he was a prisoner, when the General answered, 'He has no better sense than to come to our soil and fight us. Why did he not stay at home? He did not want me there.' Gardner said to him, 'General, it is of no use for me to reply to you. You have me in your power. I am a prisoner of war. If you were taken prisoner by our men you would not be treated in this manner.' He replied that 'He never would be taken prisoner.'"

There is considerable inquiry says the S. F. Bulletin, for wheat to be ground into flour to be shipped to China. If a sufficiency of packages can be obtained in season for the vessel, the shipment will be to the extent of 1500 barrels. This is exclusive of 4000 sacks going forward by another vessel.
